I've heard about OLLI, but not sure I would fit in...

The Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI) is for all adults who value lifelong learning and social interaction. Our members come from all educational levels and social backgrounds. Some have college degrees, many do not. You might just as easily meet a retired farmer from Gordo, Alabama as you would a professor of engineering at The Capstone. OLLI is an inclusive, friendly, all-volunteer organization where members make the important decisions.

“We never expected at this age to MAKE NEW FRIENDS.”

Tell me more about the classes and field trips...

OLLI courses are developed by and often taught by its members who volunteer their time and talents to share their knowledge and interests with other members. There's no homework, no exams, no required college degree, just learning for the pure joy of learning. Dozens of courses along with field trips are offered each semester for the mind and body. OLLI classes follow the UA semester schedule and are offered at convenient locations in the areas where OLLI has chapters. Typically classes are taught once a week for two to eight weeks and members can start and stop at any time.

How does OLLI membership work?

Members pay an annual membership fee of $25. This fee allows members to participate in bonus sessions, socials, field trips and travel opportunities. An additional semester fee is usually required for class participation. Some programs or events may carry additional fees due to materials, travel, or other cost requirements. Scholarships may be available to help with your membership as well.

Martie and Bill travel across the country on their Harley Davidson, but they love coming home to OLLI.

Is OLLI just at The University of Alabama, or are there other locations?

OLLI is growing fast and adding new chapters every year. OLLI is managed by an overall Board of Directors and each chapter has its own volunteer leaders and manages its own classes, field trips and social events. Classes are taught at various locations convenient to the membership.

In addition to the OLLI group in Tuscaloosa, currently OLLI has chapters in Birmingham, Gadsden, Greensboro, North Pickens County and South Pickens County.

How can I find out more about joining OLLI?

OLLI has information sessions and open houses throughout the year at all of its chapters. Visitors are always welcome and we will arrange for you to visit an OLLI class if space exists. Just give us a call at (205) 348-6482.

More detailed information about OLLI is at olli.ua.edu.
